THE HESSIG INQUEST WAS RESUMED TODAY

Servants and Others Testified in the Mysterious Case.

Operator Says Telephone at Hessig's Didn't Ring-- Verdict--"Death From Unknown Causes."

THE VERDICT.
"We, the jury, after having been duly sworn to investigate the death of Mrs. Ida Ethel Hessig, and hearing all the evidence in the case, do find that she came to her death from UNKNOWN CAUSES."
(Signed)

Coroner James R. Crow this morning resumed the inquest into the death of Mrs. Ida Ethel Hessig, who was found dead Wednesday, June 7th at her home at Eighth and Jackson streets. The jury was empaneled a week ago and the inquest adjourned until the analysis of the stomach was complete.

Wednesday the inquest was again deferred in order to get several witnesses the police department wanted.

This morning when Coroner Crow called the jury in the rear of the Nance and Ford undertaking parlors, there were few present except the jurymen, newspaper men and lawyers.

County Attorney Eugene Grayson and Detective T. J. Moore represented the commonwealth, and Attorneys Hal Corbett and J. Wheeler Campbell, presumably for Hessig, who was himself present, but did not remain in the room all of the time.

Eliza Towle, colored, was the first witness called. She testified in substance that she had "lived with the Hessigs off and on for five years," and was the first to see Mrs. Hessig after Dr. Hessig found her dead. She said Dr. Hessig came and aroused her about 6:30 o'clock, and said he had found his wife dead, and she went with him. He stopped by the stable or coal house, she couldn't tell which because she was hurrying in front, and didn't pay any attention, and got the ladder. While he was getting into the room she stood on the table Dr. Hessig climbed he stood on when, after being aroused by the telephone, he looked through the transom and saw his wife dead. She said she could not see anything through the transom except the foot of the bed. She did not know what Dr. Hessig was doing inside, but in a few minutes he opened the door and told her to come in. Her testimony regarding the position of the body and the bed clothing was not material, as Dr. Hessig had picked up the corpse and placed it on the bed. He told her to get the camphor and tried to resuscitate Mrs. Hessig. The witness said that one of the shades in Mrs. Hessig's room was never down at night, and that Mrs. Hessig never put out her light, but the morning Dr. Hessig called her the windows were down, shades drawn and light out. She put up the shade herself. She said there was no foam or blood on the mouth of the corpse, but was a small pimple in one corner of the mouth.

In regard to the ladder Dr. Hessig used, she said she had never known it to be kept anywhere in the house during the five years she had been working there except in the toilet and bath room. It was a white ladder and was used to get from the bath room into the attic. She said that she was called to the stable three or four times daily to get eggs, coal and to feed the horse, and never in her life saw the ladder there. The afternoon of the funeral, she said Dr. Hessig, after reading the paper, suddenly jumped up and said he must put that ladder back where he got it, and started to take it to the bath room. She asked him if he got it in the stable why he didn't put it back there, and he finally did so.

In regard to their domestic relations, she said: "They were fussing," the last time she saw them together the Sunday before Mrs. Hessig's death. In regard to the keys to the door, Dr. Hessig, Mrs. Hessig and the cook all had keys, and one key would unlock almost every door in the house. She said when found Mrs. Hessig's lips and tongue were purple. The tongue could be seen between her teeth. In regard to the curtains, she did not know how many were pulled down, nor how often. Dr. Hessig always provided well for his wife, she said. Mrs. Hessig was not often ill and seemed to take little medicine. Sometimes she would complain in the morning of having "had a 'jimmy,'" which was never asked. Sometimes Dr. Hessig acted as if he loved his wife, and at other times as if he did not. She saw one light between them in which they fought from the library into the kitchen and she jumped in to separate them because they were interfering with her work. Mrs. Hessig began it, however, by ending a quarrel with two blows on the doctor with a poker. Mrs. Hessig said she was not afraid of Dr. Hessig hurting her until he found out that she was determined to get a divorce.

Dr. and Mrs. Hessig lately slept on the same floor but not in the same room. The witness declared that the body was still warm when she was rubbing camphor on it. Dr. Hessig, she said, was crying as he worked at his wife's arms trying to restore respiration.

Dr. H. T. Rivers said he was first called and told to come to Dr. Hessig's, as he believed Mrs. Hessig was dying. In a few moments he received another message that he believed she was dead, but to come anyhow. The messengers were supposed to be from Dr. Hessig.

Dr. Rivers arrived between 7:30 and 8 o'clock. Dr. A. D. Robertson accompanied him.

To the best of his knowledge and belief, Mrs. Hessig had been dead several hours. He did not make a thorough examination of Mrs. Hessig after death. He did about ten days before. Dr. Hessig came to him, he said, and told him that his wife had consumption and a very severe case of heart disease, and wanted him to see her and make a thorough examination. He did so and found that there was apparently nothing the matter with her, except she might have a slight attack of malaria. The witness would not venture an opinion whether Mrs. Hessig died of epilepsy, as he never saw anyone die from it. He found three discolored spots on her face, one of which seemed to be a depression, or something produced by long pressure. There were hundreds of small spots on her face and in her hair. They looked like minute blood blisters but could have resulted from the pressure of the blood with the body lying head downwards, either before or after death. Dr. Rivers was questioned as to the effects of various poisons, but had little information to vouchsafe. He had no opinion whatever to offer as to the cause of Mrs. Hessig's death, because he did not make a thorough examination of the body. He said, however, that he never found any symptoms about Mrs. Hessig at anytime, of epilepsy. He said the depression in the face or temple might have resulted from the head's remaining on some object for a time. One of the jurymen asked him why Mrs. Hessig did not let her husband prescribe for her, and the witness said he could only repeat her own words to him—"The doctor, wooden-shod Dutchman hasn't got sense enough."

County Physician J. W. Pendley presented the report of Prof. Sullivan on the stomach analysis, and also described the kinds of epilepsy, saying that one form usually attacks only at night, and sometimes the victim did not know he had it, and might not know it for years. He said there was evidence of rigidity in the body of Mrs. Hessig when he saw it, but the small spots had almost disappeared. The official report of the analysis was ordered turned over to the jury.

Henrietta Brown, colored, said she had been at the Hessig home for about five years up to March. She had never seen the ladder in the stable during the time she was there, but did not know what might have happened since March. She said that she had heard Mrs. Hessig talk about having a "jimmy," but never knew what it was until one day Dr. Hessig called her to the room and said Mrs. Hessig was having a hard one. Mrs. Hessig seemed to be unconscious, although she afterwards claimed to have heard all they said, and her hands twitched, but there was no foam or froth about her mouth. Dr. and Mrs. Hessig quarreled very much. She heard the conversation with Dr. Hessig about the ladder when he went to put it back after Mrs. Hessig's funeral. Sometimes Mrs. Hessig burned a light a night, and sometimes she didn't. Mrs. Hessig once told her she always had a "jimmy" when she thought about her people.

Ada Gray, colored, was the Hessig's washerwoman, and testified to about the same effect as the other two. Dr. Hessig said just before announcing that he would put the ladder back where he got it, "You see, Ada, they are trying to do me." She said it was something he had heard about the case in the paper.

Miss Veal, night chief operator at the People's Independent Telephone exchange, was introduced in regard to the statement Dr. Hessig made that he was first aroused by the ringing of the telephone in his wife's room. She said that from 9 p. m. one operator and herself were the only ones in charge of the board at independent company's office. She said she seldom made a mistake, but that she remembered particularly about the Hessig telephone because the manager had given them explicit orders about it. They were not allowed to connect the telephone, which was in Mrs. Hessig's room, and was 384, with anyone unless the person in 384 was a woman and said it was Mrs. Hessig. Anyone who called for 384 could of course get it. The orders they had all received about the Hessig telephone, however, she said, caused them to pay particular attention to it, and she swore positively that no one was at the board except herself between 6 and 6:45 o'clock a. m. on the morning of Mrs. Hessig's death, and that Mrs. Hessig's telephone did not ring during that time. When questioned she admitted that sometimes wires get crossed and caused phones to ring, and sometimes the exchange operators give a person the wrong number, but declared that nothing of the kind happened on this morning. The first cow ordinance violator was arraigned in police court for permitting his cow to run at large within the city limits. He was Mr. B. R. Ragsdale and his case was continued until Monday in order to give cow owners more time to get up their money and have the suit instituted.

SHERIFF POTTER ON ELECTION BOARD

He Will Serve Instead of Circuit Clerk Emory Hobson.

Court of Appeals Decides the Second Class City Law Uncon- stitutional.

DEMOCRATIC MACHINE PRODUCT

Frankfort, Ky., June 16.—Court of appeals, by Chief Justice Hobson, has affirmed the Kenton circuit court in the case of Frank A. Drago vs. M. D. McInerney, sheriff. The court holds invalid the act of March 22, 1904, making the circuit court clerk a member of the county board of election commissioners, instead of the sheriff. In "counties where there is no sheriff and counties containing cities of the second class," the act was aimed at McInerney, and is held to be special or class legislation.

The above affects only McCracken, Kenton and Campbell and Fayette counties. It means that the sheriffs in these counties shall serve on the election board as in other Kentucky counties. The Democratic machine wanted to get the sheriff off the election board in Covington, as he was a thorn in their side, and had the legislature pass a special law, making the circuit clerk a member of the election board instead of the sheriff. In the four counties having second class cities.

This law affected Paducah, as it made Circuit Clerk Emory Hobson a member of the election board instead of Sheriff Lee Potter, who had been serving. Circuit Clerk Hobson has never served on the board, however, as he lives in Cincinnati and was not here the other two commissioners, Messrs. Ed Farley and J. C. Flournoy, transacting the business harmoniously without any necessity for his attendance and vote.

INSOLVENT DEBTORS

Will Take the Oath Tomorrow and Get Out of Jail.

Deputy U. S. Marshal George Saunders arrived from Mayfield at noon to look after some business here, but will have to return tonight on account of the illness of his wife who is suffering from bronchitis.

Marshal Saunders will return tomorrow, however, to take several federal prisoners from the jail to Commissioner W. A. Gardner's office where they will take the insolvent debtor's oath and be released from serving out a $100 fine.

There are six prisoners in jail, two white and four colored who have just completed serving out their jail sentences but owe fines for illicit whiskey selling. They are Jack Whitesides, city, and Will Hartman, Benton, white. The colored are Lee Hingham, Murray; Poney Murrell, Mayfield; Luther Chambers, Mayfield, and Press Lindsey, Mayfield. They were fined $100 and thirty days in jail during the April term of federal court and several have notified District Attorney Hill and expect to take the oath tomorrow.

Jack Whitesides, who failed to procure a lawyer and get the notification drawn in regular form, will not be permitted to take the oath because of the fact. Whitesides has several letters from Attorney Hill, and was very much wrought up over it this afternoon saying that he intended telegraphing the president of the United States if Attorney Hill didn't give him a better show.

NO APPLICANTS

For Office of Constable in the Fifth District.

It seems that the office of constable in the Fifth District will go begging, no one seeming to want it.

Constable H. F. Sears resigned several weeks ago and the only applicant for the position was Mr. M. T. Hurt, who has now withdrawn his application. County Judge Lightfoot has no applications for this office and stated this afternoon that he would wait until some came in.

BATTLE ON LAND IS LIKELY AT ANY TIME

May be August Before Peace Plenipoten- tiaries Get Together.

Russia Said to be Willing to Make Peace to Prevent European War.

London, June 16.—While the mikado's diplomats are busy with the preliminaries of a conclave to end the war, Field Marshal Oyama has begun another great battle against the czar's forces, and one which promises to be so decisive that peace must follow.

Already the Japanese commander in chief has thrown a net partially around the Russians.

Oyama is using his old tactics in the present battle. In every great battle he has fought in Manchuria he has made a feint on the Russian right and then sent a strong force around the left to cut off the enemy's retreat. Thus far his enemy has always escaped him with great loss. Now the Japanese are pushing ahead in a vast semicircle, and Oyama's objective this time is to close the gap to the north, through which heretofore his foe has always found an open way.

The plans which Oyama is now carrying out on such a vast scale have been in the making since the battle of Mukden. He delayed the execution of it until Togo's victory in the sea of Japan made it certain that his re-enforcements and his base of supplies would not be interrupted. As soon as his possible fears on that account were allayed, he sent forward his advance lines and prepared for the decisive struggle, in which he now has 150,000 men engaged.

Already Oyama has crumpled up the Russian left. Under date "of Monday, General Linevitch wires to St. Petersburg, admitting that his left gave way after desperate fighting, and that the move has every appearance of a general engagement."

Some Inside Facts.

Paris, June 16.—The question of peace negotiations is complicated with certain features of what is easily described as the European situation, which almost overshadow it in general importance. Peace may come, but it will be negotiated with considerable unwillingness on the part of both belligerents who are influenced in accepting President Roosevelt's invitations at the present moment by considerations quite extraneous from the far eastern situation.

When M. Delcasse resigned the portfolio of the foreign office, Germany and France were on the verge of war. Delcasse thought that Germany was bluffing. Prime Minister Rouvier, remembering 1870, believed otherwise. Germany had been for some weeks strengthening her garrisons near the French frontier. France responded with a similar move. The Kaiser, ignoring his own provocation, notified France that if she did not cease this military movement Germany would consider it an unfriendly act. This, of course, was equivalent to an ultimatum, and M. Rouvier sent a conciliatory reply. Within few hours after M. Delcasse's retirement M. Rouvier made certain representations to Russia, which had far greater effect upon the czar's present course than even Mr. Roosevelt's letter. M. Delcasse had done everything in his power to support the Russian policy and uphold the alliance, and had refrained from pressing advice, peaceful or otherwise, upon the czar's government.

M. Rouvier said to Russia, in effect, that the vital interests of France required the czar to do something under the terms of the alliance for her protection against German aggression. It was imperative that Russia restore her military strength on her western frontier and be prepared to take an active part in the campaign if France was attacked. He went so far as to intimate that unless Russia promptly assumed some of her duties as an ally, France would be unable to see the advantage of a continuance of the alliance, which thus far has been wholly unavailing. In a word, he strongly advised the czar to make peace immediately and to give attention to the

CANNOT BE FOUND

DR. JOE STEWELL SAID TO HAVE DISAPPEARED.

Alleged to Have Written a Letter to His Wife That He Was Going Away.

We have it from a reliable source that Dr. Joe Stewell, the well-known physician who lives just across the Teling county line in Stewart county, Tenn., between Salsburg and Humpus' Mill, has recently left home and his whereabouts is unknown to his family and friends, says the Chiles, Ky., Record.

He took his departure, so our information is, about two weeks ago, and told his wife that he was going to Dawson to spend a few days for his health. A day or two after he left, she received a letter from him mailed on the train informing her that he was going to leave the country and might leave the United States and that he had made suitable arrangements for the temporal necessities of herself and little four-year-old child, and that if she would go to Dover she would find things properly arranged. Upon investigation it was found that he had placed $5,000 in the Dover bank to her credit, and had left his business in the hands of James Hancock, his wife's father, with instructions to wind it up and give the proceeds to his wife and child, besides all the personal property was left them, three lots in some western town were left to the child.

He is reported to be worth something like $25,000 or $30,000, all of which it is supposed he took with him except the amount he left his wife and child. He also enjoyed a splendid practice and had been very successful along that line.

He had recently disposed of all of his investments, which were principally in Oklahoma and Arizona, except the three lots in the new town which he left to his little child.

THE GUTTERS

Close the Board of Health Much Amusement.

Dr. J. W. Pendley, president of the board of health, stated this morning that residents generally were cleaning up their premises and the greatest trouble experienced by the sanitary officers and board was in the gutter nuisance.

There are a number of gutters which have little or no drainage, the water standing in them constantly. The board has been working to remedy this matter and has the assurance of the board of public works and legislative board members that the gutters will be repaired as soon as possible.

The Sun, and Its Readers to Aid in the Noble Working of Making Happy the Little Folks.

Mr. and Mrs. Chiles of the Rescue Mission have conceived the idea of giving some of the poor children of the city a picnic, and appreciating the magnitude of the work have solicited the assistance of The Sun and its friends. The Sun readily assented to be a party to the undertaking and believes most of its readers will. There are about 150 little fellows who it is the intention to take out to some nice, cool, shady spot and give them an old-fashioned picnic, one like mother used to make for you when you were a youngster.

The Sun wants all of its readers to donate something to this effort to dispense a little pleasure where it is badly needed, and if the heads of each family reading the paper will promise to fix us up a lunch basket it will be all we could ask. Of course it will take some cash to pay for wagons to transport the little fellows to the grounds and buy ice and other necessities of the sort but this we shall raise by subscription. We already have some cash subscriptions—subscriptions which we publish below. Fill in the coupon subjoined and send it in as your mite. We don't care what you send, simply donate something, it only a dime.

Daily Thought.

The fellow who can be late when his own interests are at stake is pretty sure to be late when yours are.—Success.

100 MILES AN HOUR.

A number of papers are calling attention to the danger of the epidemic of breaking railroad records. One hundred and twenty-seven miles an hour recently made by one railroad is faster than most folks care to travel.

The Globe Democrat says:

"If this time annihilating transit can be had without increased risk the experiment will justify itself. It is clear that the railway companies expect their swift trains to pay for the outlay. The money consideration is dominant with them, as it is in all sorts of business ventures. If wrecks can be averted, the chances are that the trains will be abundantly patronized at the increased rates which will be charged. But the increased speed demands increased vigilance on the part of train crews and railway track inspectors. A wreck at a 100-mile-an hour gait would necessarily be far more disastrous than at a speed of 40 or 50 miles. Such a catastrophe would have a tendency to cut down the travel by these trains, for the time, at least. All these things, of course, have been taken into the calculation by the rival railway companies. In the meantime the term

"faster" as applied to these record-breaking trains becomes something more than a figure of speech."

"THE RETURN OF SHERLOCK HOLMES."

No character in fiction has created more interest or entertained more people than "Sherlock Holmes," and many were the regrets when Conan

Doyle brought him to a seemingly untimely end. He makes his reappearance in the first of a series of 12 short stories which will be published in The Sun serially beginning

Saturday and the lovers of good fiction should not miss any of them.

They are just as thrilling and exciting as any of "The Sherlock Holmes" series and show that Conan Doyle has lost none of his genius which made him famous. The Sun congratulates itself on securing these stories, and congratulates its readers, too. We have endeavored all the time to keep up the high standard set by our first continued stories and are well satisfied that in our latest publication we shall again do so. The story beginning tomorrow is "The Adventure of the Empty House" in which "Sherlock Holmes" dramatically makes his reappearance.

Beer drinking is becoming a mania with some of the young men about Fulton. Its effects are seriously disturb the community. They don't stop at a drink. They combine and buy a keg of the stuff and carouse around it until it's all drunk up. By that time some of them are drunk, and all of them are "under the influence," says the Fulton Commercial, which is a hot local option paper in a local option town. If the above is the true state of affairs, and it is likely it is, Fulton would probably be better off with saloons where these young men could get a drink when they wanted it without having to buy a whole keg. One thing is evident from the Commercial's admission, and that is that local option does not prevent anyone from getting intoxicated.

Mayor Dunne, of Chicago, is ready to repudiate Scotch Expert Dalrymple and his opinions. The latter has caused consternation in the administration camp, and the radicals who carried the last election are willing to admit that bringing Dalrymple to this country was a mistake. They are now thinking of getting Tom Johnson there from Cleveland, O., to counteract the weight of the opinions of the Scotchman and dispel the gloom that hovers over the camp of the radicals in such large chunks.

THE HESSIG INQUEST

occasion. After an ineffectual effort to break her testimony she left the stand still declaring that no matter what might have happened, the Hessig telephone did not ring between 6 a. m. and 6:45 a. m.

Mr. Levan, father of Mrs. Hessig was next called, and said that he had often heard Dr. Hessig and his daughter quarrel, and had heard him make a good many threats. "If I told you all I had ever heard him say," said the grandfather, but kindly old man, "it would fill a book as big as from here to the courthouse." He then stated that he had heard Dr. Hessig say he was going to get rid of his wife, but didn't know what he meant, whether he meant by getting a divorce, or not. Probably he did. He also heard him say that he, Dr. Hessig, would "fix it with her Tuesday night," meaning, he supposed, that they would settle their controversy over some property.

He said that one of his sons died of epilepsy over near Cruthersville, Mo. He was found dead in bed, and nearly always had attacks in the night. A daughter also died of epilepsy, but wasted away, and did not die suddenly. Another child was found dead with his head over in a stupor. They always supposed he was hiding some apples in the stump, and lost his balance, and smothered, but as he was subject to epilepsy, he might have had an attack and fallen.

Mrs. Levan testified to about the same facts, except that she said Dr.
Hessig had threatened to her, Mrs.
Levan, "to get rid of her (Mrs. Hessig)" some way, the last threat having been made the Sunday before Mrs. Hessig's death. Dr. Hessig had called on that occasion to have his little grandchild stay with his wife while he went to Louisville.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Levan declared that their daughter, Mrs. Hessig, never had the slightest symptoms of epilepsy so far as they knew, but that Dr. Hessig had been telling them that she had it for two and possibly three years. They never asked her about it because he had cautioned them not to hint it to her for fear it would make her worse, and they never had. At this juncture the inquest was adjourned until 2 p. m.

Dr. Olivia Nelson was the first witness that while she had never treated Mrs. Hessig for epilepsy, Mrs. Hessig seemed to be a woman likely to be subject to epilepsy. Dr. Nelson was her physician, and treated her, but not for epilepsy. She attended her for female trouble, and a short time before death noticed on her bruises apparently from a "fit."

Mrs. Lehar, a nurse who attended the late Fred Hessig, before he died and also nursed Mrs. Hessig, Dr. Hessig's mother, testified that Dr. Hessig's wife had "fits" for three years. She said she herself had seen her have several, the most violent being about five weeks ago, when she foamed at the mouth and fell out of bed in her paroxysms.

The last four witnesses were strongly favorable to the epilepsy theory.

There was then a brief discussion over having more witnesses. Detective Moore said that he was satisfied from the evidence that Mrs. Hessig may have had epilepsy, but not satisfied that she died from it.

He said he had heard of more evidence, and if it developed as he had been told it would, it was important, and may throw a different light on the case. He could not get the evidence this afternoon, however.

Dr. Hessig's attorney suggested that the case could be taken up by the grand jury. If Detective Moore was not satisfied, and it was then decided to let the jury return a verdict on the evidence submitted.

The Jury's Statement.

The jury, after the longest and verdict, the latter being somewhat unsatisfactory to Dr. Hessig and his attorneys, called at the Sun office and agreed to this statement:

That it was the opinion of the jury that Mrs. Hessig died from epilepsy, but inasmuch as there was no expert testimony to this effect, they could not officially so conclude. They exonerated Dr. H. T. Hessig completely, however, from any connection with her death.

THE REVIVALS.

A large congregation was present last evening at the Broadway Methodist church revival showing a decided increase in the number of men over any previous service. Rev. A. C.
Bell, of Columbus, Ky., preached the sermon. His subject was "Judgment" and it was a very forcible presentation of the subject, and held the attention of his hearers throughout.
The interest is gaining and the leaders feel much encouraged over it.
Last evening at 6:30 "The Quarterette" sang on the Custom House corner and greatly impressed "who heard them. These street services will be repeated.

The service this morning was conducted by Rev. John C. Wilson and was a most interesting one.

There will be a song service tonight at 8 o'clock before the sermon.

At the Third Street Methodist church last night there was much interest manifested. Rev. J. P. Newsome preached a very strong sermon on "Saving ladies of the Gospel," and at the close 20 persons came forward for prayer. There were two conversions and three joined the church.
The church membership meeting yesterday afternoon was a largely attended one, and much good is expected from it. The church votes were renewed by all those present.

Rev. J. V. Freeman made a strong plea last night at the Tribune Street Methodist church at the close of his sermon on "Continual Service." Many went forward for prayer, and there was one profession. The congregation was quite a large one.

A Small Blaze.

The Nos. 2 and 4 fire departments were called to the Luck Singletree Co. plant on South Third street today at noon to extinguish a blaze in a pile of shavings. The fire caught from a spark and had not gained a very great headway when discovered.
The firemen succeeded in putting out the fire within a few minutes and no damage was done.

IN THE COURTS

Lost the Case.

The case of William Dudley, a former
I. C. employee, against the road for $10,000 damages for injuries received by being struck by the spout of a water tank, was decided in favor of the defendant at Princeton yesterday on peremptory instructions, the court holding that the railroad was not responsible for the accident.
Hendrick and Miller, of the city, will take an appeal.

Oil Cases at Benton.

Eight indictments against the Standard Oil company will come up for trial in the Benton circuit court today, but it is probable that all but one of them will be dismissed, as the court of appeals has just held that the company can be indicted only one time in each county every year for failure to have a license. The decision was rendered three days ago.
Another case to come up at Benton today is that of the Holcomb-Loeb Tie company against Mrs. H. M.
Kaufman, of Birmingham, Marshall county, for $3,500. It is claimed Mr.
H. M. Holmes, a former husband of Mrs. Kaufman, who did business in her name, was advanced $7,500 to use in buying ties for the plaintiff, and did not spend or return the balance to the plaintiffs.

Court Nearing An End.

Circuit Judge Wm. Reed has been rushing the Marshall circuit court at Benton, disposing of 126 minor criminal cases within a few days.

The Standard Oil company's eight indictments for selling oil without a license are the only cases left on the criminal docket this term except the Walter Holland murder case which is set for the 20th.

Never Signed the Deed.

City Solicitor Ed. Puryear has found that so far as the records show the old school property in Mechanicsburg was bought by the city in 1896 for $311 from the county for use as a city school, and Mayor Vel-

CONSIDER THE SCALES.

They are balanced only when the two sides are even with each other. Consider your scheme of living. Is it well-balanced? Is the spending side of your life even with the saving side?

It is not necessary to save as much as you spend to make your scheme of living balance. It may take only a third or a fourth or a fifth of your income to balance the spending side. But it will take something. Think it over, Hard.

er, who was then holding the same office he has now, was instructed to deed it to the board of education, but for some reason he never did it. It is supposed that it will be easy enough now for the legislative boards to order him to sign the deed, and after he has done it the board of education can proceed with the sale of the property, on which it has always paid for all repairs, insurance and such things.

Wants Money Back.

W. N. Warren has filed suit in quarterly court against the People's Home Purchasing company for $300.
He claims he paid for one of their bonds owned by another person. He understood from the company, he alleges, that he could borrow $1,000 on it, but was never able to get a red cent, and now wants the amount of his investment back.

Likes the Culverts.

County Road Supervisor Bert Johnson thinks the concrete culverts being installed in the county are good things. He has flushed four and has decided to put in three more as soon as possible. Those flushed are at the Ed. Ware farm, at the Gl

A B.G INCREASE IN TOBACCO HERE

Government Report Shows 25 Percent Gain.

Plants Are Said to Be Good, On the Whole—The Local Tobacco Report.

NEWS FROM OTHER PLACES.

Washington, June 15.—From the report on the condition of the tobacco crop issued by the department of agriculture information is gathered from 1,500 special correspondents of no increase of the tobacco acreage in the burley district composed of counties in Kentucky, Ohio, Indiana, and West Virginia, which is estimated at 25 per cent.

Regarding the burley district in Kentucky the report says that the increase is much larger than 25 per cent, and a reason given is that since the price of thoroughbred horses has decreased many breeders have plowed up grass lands and planted them in tobacco.

The department adds: "Reports as to conditions of plants, the character of the season, transplanting, etc., vary greatly, but on the whole it may be said that the plants are good and plentiful, the season early in some localities, a month earlier than usual, and transplanting well advanced."

Conditions in the regal or dark tobacco district of Kentucky and Tennessee are reported generally favorable.

Killed by Paris Green.
Caldiz, Ky., June 15.—A little son of Harry Hester, who lives on the old Hayes place near Roaring Spring, died under very peculiar circumstances. He was at work putting Paris green on tobacco plants that had been set out recently to prevent cut worms from destroying them, and while at work ate some green apples. A short while after, he complained of being sick and wanted to go to the house. The father thought there was nothing wrong with the boy, and insisted that he keep at work. The boy shortly after went to the house and went to bed. The father followed shortly after and finding the boy suffering much pain, had a physician sent for, but the boy continued to grow worse and died that night. The boy was evidently poisoned by getting the poison into his stomach off his fingers while eating the apples.

SIR HENRY MORGAN, BUCCANEER

By CYRUS TOWNSEND BRADY,

Author of "The Southerners," "For Love of Country," "The Grip of Honor," Etc.

COPYRIGHT, 1905, BY C. W. DILLINGHAM COMPANY

So long as it was light Morgan intently watched the sea. There was a sense of companionship in it which helped to alleviate his miserable loneliness. And he was a man to whom loneliness in itself was a punishment. There were too many things in the past that had a habit of making their presence felt when he was alone for him ever to desire to be solitary. Presently the sun disappeared with the stars, and the darkness fell over the sea and over his forehead like a veil. The moon did not yet rise, and he could see nothing. There were a few faint clouds on the horizon, he had noticed, which might presage a storm. It was very dark and very still, and calm and peaceful a tropical night as ever shrouded the Caribbean. Further and further away from him he could hear the rattle of the receding waves as the tide went down. Over his head twinkled the stars out of the deep darkness.

Then the moon sprang up as suddenly as the sun had fallen. Her silver radiance flooded the firmament. Light, heavenly light, once more! Far away from him the white line of the waves was breaking on the silver sand.

Now the tide turned and came creeping in. It had gone out slowly, it had lingered as if reluctant to leave him, but to his distraught vision it returned with the swiftness of a thousand white horses trailing their wind-blown manes. The wind died down; the clouds were dissipated. The night was so very calm it mocked the storm raging in his soul. And still the silverest water came flooding in. Gently, tenderly, caressingly, the little waves lapped the sands. At last they lifted the ghastly head of young Tench and laid it at his feet.

He cursed the rising water and bade it stay, and heedlessly it came on. It was a treacherous sea, and the waters were as warm as those of any sun-kissed ocean, but they looked upon his knees with the coldness of eternal ice. They reached the heavier body of his faithful slave against him. He strove to drive it away with his foot as he had striven to thrust aside the ghastly head, and without avail. The two friends recoiled as the waves rolled back, but they came on again and again and again. They had been faithful to him in life; they remained with him in death.

Now the water broke about his waist; now it rose to his breast. He was exhausted, worn out. He hung silent, staring. His mind was busy. He thought went back to that rugged Welsh land where he had been born. He saw himself a little boy playing in the fields that surrounded the farmhouse of his father and mother.

He took again that long trip across the ocean. He lived again in the hot hell of the Caribbean. Old forms of forgotten inequities clustered about him.

The water was higher now. It was at his neck. There were Porto Bello, Puerto Principe, and Maracaibo, and Chagres, and Panama—ah, Panama! All the deeds of hell had been there, and he had been their chief! They came back now to mock him.

There was pale-faced, tender-eyed Maria Zerega, who had died of the plague, and the baby, the boy, Juanita, too, swept into his vision. There was his wife slinking away from him in the very articles of death. There was young Ebenezer Hornigold, dancing right merrily upon the gallows, together with others of the buccannery he had harbored.

The grim figure of the one-eyed boatwain rose before him and leered upon him and swept the other apparitions away. This was La Guirya yesterday. He had been betrayed. Whose men were those? The men hanging on the walls? And Hornigold had done it—old Ben Hornigold—that he thought so faithful.

He screamed aloud again with hate; he cursed down curses upon the head of the growing one-eyed monster. And the water broke into his mouth and stopped him. It called him to his senses for a moment. His present peril overcame the hideous recollection of the past. That water was rising still. Great God! At last he prayed. Lips that had only cursed shaped themselves into little petitions. There was a God after all.

The end was upon him, yet with the old instinct of life he lifted himself upon his toes. He raised his arms as far as the chains gave him play and caught the chains themselves and strove to pull, to lift, at last only to hold himself up, a rigid, awful figure. He gained an inch or two, but his fetters held him down. As the water supported him he found little difficulty in maintaining the position for a space. But he could go no higher. If the water rose an inch more that would be the end. He could breathe only between the breaking waves now.

The body of the black waves now, against his knees and again, the head of young Tench kissed him upon the cheek, and still the water seemed to rise and rise and rise. He was a dead man like the other two indeed, he prayed to the God yet in fear he clung to the chains and held on. Much more he fancied would be his last, but he could not let go.

It was by the waters fell. He could not believe it at first. He still lunged suspended and waited with bated breath. Was he deceived? No, the waters were surely falling. The seconds seemed minutes to him; the minutes, hours. At last he gained assurance. There was no doubt but that the tide was going down. The waves had risen far, but he had been lifted above them; now they were falling, falling! Yes, and they were bearing away that accursed body and that ghastly head. He was alive still, saved for the time being. The highest waves only touched his breast now. Lower, lower, they moved away. Hebetantly they lingered, but they fell they fell.

To drown? That was not the thought of God for him then. What would it be? His head fell forward on his breast he had fainted in the sudden relief of his undesired salvation.

Long time he lay there, and still the tide ebbed away, carrying with it all that was left of the only two who had loved him. He was alone now surely, save for that watcher in the bushes. After awhile consciousness returned to him again, and after the first swift sense of relief there came to him a deeper terror, for he had gone through the horror and anguish of death and had not died. He was alive still, but as helpless as before.

It was morning now. The tide right hand the sun sprang from the ocean bed with the same swiftness with which it had departed the night before. Like the tide, it, too, rose and rose. There was not a cloud to temper the fierceness with which it beat upon his head, not a breath of air to blow across his fevered brow. The blinding rays struck him like hammers of molten iron. He stared at it out of his frozzled, bloodshot eyes and writhed beneath its blazing heat. All his faculties were merged into one consuming desire for water—water. The thirst was intolerable. Unless he could get some his brain would give way. He was dying, dying, dying! Oh, God, he could not die; he was not ready to die! Oh, for one moment of time, for one drop of water—God—God—God!

Suddenly before his eyes there arose a figure. At first he fancied it was another of the apparitions which had accompanied him during the awful night and morning, but this was a living man. He looked at him with a mixture of horror and amazement. It was a man of about thirty years of age, with a face as pale as death, and a body that looked as if it had been scorched by fire. He was dressed in a simple, dark, loose-fitting garment, and he had a look of intense suffering and despair. He was looking at Morgan with a gaze that seemed to pierce his very soul.

Life a Burden

There are times when life seems a burden—when you are tired, worn-out, have dull pains in the head and a continual feeling of uneasiness. You have no appetite, and your digestion is poor; your sleep broken, and you get no rest.

Little annoyances seem great mountains of trouble, and you are blue, melancholy and given over to gloomy forebodings.

This means low vitality—exhausted brain nerves.

For this condition Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine is a specific; it is a food for the nerves. It builds up the nervous system, and restores lost energy.

Try it to-day and see if your sleep is not sound and refreshing, and the morrow brighter and more hopeful.

"I am glad to announce that I have recovered my health, as far as my advanced age will permit, as I am 83 years old. My case was very bad; my nerves were all shattered. I suffered much pain and weakness, was so weak and felt so sad and lonely, and heart-broken. When I commenced taking Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine I was completely restored. I have taken the Restorative Nervine, Head Cure and Nerve and Liver Pills, and they cured me."

man figure, an old man, bent, haggard, like himself, with watching, but with a fierce mad joy in his face. Where had he come from? Who was he? What did he want? The figure stared upon the unhappy man with one fiery eye and then he lifted before the captive's distorted vision something. What was it—a cup of water? Water, water brimming over the cup! It was just out of reach of his lips—so cool, so sweet, so inviting! He strained at his chains, bent his head, thrust his lips out. He could almost touch it—not quite! He struggled and struggled and strove to break his fetters, but without avail. Those fetters could not be broken by the hand of man. He could not drink—ah, God!—then he lifted his blinded eyes and gazed at the face of the other.

"Hornigold!" he whispered hoarsely with his parched and stiffened lips. "Is it thou?"

"Aye, I wanted to let you know there was water here. You must be thirsty. You'd like a drink? So would I. There is not enough for both of us. Who will get it? I. Look!"

"Not all—not all!" screamed the old captain faintly as the other drained the cup. "A little! A drop for me!"

"Not one drop!" answered Hornigold; "not one drop! If you were here I held a river in my hand you would not get a drop! It's gone."

He thrust the cup from him. "Do you recall it? You owe this to me. You had your revenge; this is mine. But it's all over yet. I'm watching you. I shall not come out here again, but I'm watching you, remember that! I can see you!"

"Take that knife you bear—kill me!" "I don't want you to die—not yet. I want you to live—live a long time, and remember!"

"Hornigold, I'll make amends! I'll be your slave!"

"Aye, crawl and wringe now, you dog! I swore that you should die! It's useless to beg me for mercy. I know not that word; neither did you. Remember, I watch!"

He threw his glance upward, stopped suddenly, a fierce light in that old eye of his.

"Look up," he cried, "and you will see! Take heart, man. I guess you won't have to wait for the tide, and the sun won't bother you long. Remember, I am watching you!"

He turned and walked away, contenting himself in the case once more, where he could see and not be seen. The realization that he was watched by one whom he could not see, one who gloated over his miseries and sufferings and agonies, added the last touch to the torture of the buccannery. He had no longer strength or courage. He no longer cared out after that one last appeal to the merciless sailor. He did not even look up in obedience to the old man's injunction. What was there above him, hornigold, around him, that could add to his fear? He prayed for death. They were the first and last prayers that had fallen from his lips for fifty years, those that day. Yet when death did come at last he shrank from it with an increasing terror and horror that made all that he had passed through seem like a trifle.

When old Hornigold had looked up he had seen a speck in the vaulted heaven. It was slowly soaring around and around in vast circles and with each circle coming nearer and nearer to the ground. A pair of keen and powerful eyes were aloft there, piercing the distance, looking, searching in every direction until at last their glance fell upon the figure upon the rock. The circling stopped. There was a swift rush through the air. A black feathered body passed between the buccannery and the sun, and a mighty volume, hideous tail of the tropics, alighted on the sands near by him.

So this was the judgment of God upon this man! For a second his tortured heart stopped its beating. He stared at the nautilus thing, and then he shrank back against the rock and screamed with frantic terror. The bird moved heavily back a little distance and stopped, peering at him. He could see it by turning his head. He could drive it no farther. In another moment there was another rush through the air, another, another! He screamed again. Still they came until it seemed as if the earth and the heavens were black with the horrible birds. Light in the air they had seen the first one swooping to the earth and with unerring instinct, as with their light, had turned and made for the point from which the first bird dropped downward to the shore.

They circled themselves about him. They sat upon the rock above him. They stared at him with their hateful, cunning, jeweled eyes out of their beak-holes, featherless, naked heads, drawing nearer, nearer, nearer. He could do no more. His voice was gone. His strength was gone. He closed his eyes, but the sight was still before him. His bleeding, foamy lips murmured one unavailing word:

"Hornigold!"

From the cove there came no sound, no answer. He sank forward in his chains, his head upon his breast, convulsive shudders above proclaiming uttering life. He had no terror like to this which he, living, suffered.

There was a weight upon his shoulders now. Fierce talons sank deep into his quivering flesh. In front of his face, before a pair of lidless eyes that glowed like fire, a hellish, cruel hawk struck at him. A faint, low, ghastly cry trembled through the still air.

And the restless tide came in. A man drove away the birds at last before they had quite taken all, for the torch arms still hung in the iron fetters an old man, blind of one eye, the black patch torn off the hideous hole that had replaced the socket. He

Hell had no terror like to this

And so the judgment of God was visited upon Sir Henry Morgan and his men at last, and as it was writ of old: With what measure they had meted out, it had been measured back to them again!

HAS AUTOMOBIL. Messrs. Will and Frank Riecke to introduce a Pleasure Craft.

Mr. Will Riecke and Mr. Frank Riecke have purchased an automobile which will be here sometime this week. It is a twenty-five foot, seven-horse-power gasoline boat, with a top, and fitted up luxuriously. It will carry 25 people.

It is a subject of marked comment among all new comers to Paducah that the river is used so little for pleasure craft, but there is a good deal of interest being taken in automobiles this summer and the prospects are that there will be several with the probabilities of a boat club before the season is over.

NOTED CASE

HAS BEEN FINISHED IN THE CALDWELL CIRCUIT COURT.

Robert Merrick Acquitted On a Charge of Killing His Brother.

A somewhat noted case has been finished at Princeton, Ky., and Robert Merrick, of Walloola, Trigg county, has been acquitted of causing the death of his brother, Zeke Merrick, while they were engaged in an encounter on Sunday, the 5th of June, 1904, at the home of Fred Merrick, a nephew of the two men, just across the Trigg line in Caldwell county. He was charged in the indictment with beating Zeke Merrick with his fist and kicking him about the body and head and stamping him in the stomach. There was no proof on the trial of the case to justify the charge that the man was struck or stamped, and on the ground only of taking the man by the arm and throwing the other around him while they were engaged in a scuffle was the jury instructed to consider the man guilty at all as charged.

The defendant took the position that Zeke Merrick came to his death by poisoning himself with suicidal intent. This was borne out by the further fact that at the time the difficulty came up and over which it arose, Zeke Merrick was under indictment in the Caldwell circuit court for incest, and that his trial was set for the day on which his death occurred. There was also some evidence introduced that Zeke Merrick had stated that he would never live to be tried for the charge of incest, the crime charged to having been committed on his daughter.

The jury was out only about two hours.

THAT TIRED FEELING: If you are languid depressed and incapable for work, it indicates that your liver is out of order. Herbine will assist, nature to throw off headaches, rheumatism and ailments akin to nervousness and restore the energies and vitality of sound and perfect health. J. J. Hubbard, Temple, Texas, writes, March 22, 1902: "I have used Herbine for the past two years. It has done me more good than all the doctors. When I feel bad and have that tired feeling, I take a dose of Herbine. It is the best medicine ever made for chills and fever." 50c a bottle at Alvey & List and G. C. C. Kolb, Paducah, Ky.

EXPERTS HERE

Looking Over Books of the United States Gas, Coal and Coke Co.

Messrs. Robert Sealy and W. B. Bird, of New York City, are here as representatives of the syndicate supposed to be headed by Pierpont Morgan that recently bought the properties of the United States Gas, Coal and Coke company. They came here from Sturgis, and are at present auditing the books of the company here and getting them in shape for the business of the new company, which is now in charge.

HAVE YOU A COUGH? A dose of Ballard's Horehound Syrup will relieve it. Have you a cold? A dose of Herbine at bed time and frequent small doses of Horehound Syrup during the day will remove it. Try it for whooping cough, for asthma, for consumption, for bronchitis. Mrs. Joe McGrath, 327 E. 1st street, Hutchinson, Kan., writes: "I have used Ballard's Horehound Syrup in my family for 5 years, and find it the best and most palatable medicine I ever used." 25c, 50c, $1.00. Alvey & List, and G. C. C. Kolb, Paducah, Ky.

SLIGHT ACCIDENTS. Mr. Louis Schaeffer, of the Herg-doll works, 12th and Jones streets, was painfully cut yesterday afternoon on the arm by his knife slipping while he was trying to pull a cork from a bottle. Dr. Pendley dressed the injury.

Messrs. Turner and Chappell, of the Huercher brewery, have painful cuts, the former being cut on the elbow by a bursting bottle and the other having a finger caught in a machine.

Merrick Won the Medal. The Gun club yesterday afternoon held its regular practice shoot at Wallace park, the results being as follows: 25 bird event, James Weille 20, Ambrose Merrick 22, W. B. Kennedy 18, Henry Meyer 21, James Lloyd 18; 25 clay pigeons for the club medal, Kennedy 18, Meyer 18, Weille 21, Merrick 22 and Lloyd 19. This gives the medal to Merrick again.

GEN. TOM OWEN

ELECTED COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF OF SONS OF VETERANS.

The Big Parade Took Place in Louisville This Morning—A Grand Time Being Had.

Louisville, Ky., June 16.—The election of officers yesterday afternoon by the United Sons of Confederate Veterans resulted as follows:

Thomas M. Owen, of Montgomery, Ala., commander-in-chief.
G. Leslie Spence, of Richmond, Va., commander of Department of Virginia.

R. E. Lee Hyman, of Jackson, Tenn., commander of the Department of Tennessee.

L. J. Stockett of Tyler, Texas, commander of the Trans-Mississippi Department.

STANDARD TIME

Applies to All Insurance Policies, Says Appellate Court.

Frankfort, Ky., June 16.—The court of appeals, by Judge O'Hear, reversed the case of the Rochester German Insurance company vs. Peaslee-Gaultier company and affirmed the National Fire Insurance company vs. same and Pacific Fire Insurance company vs. Louisville Lead company, from the Jefferson common pleas court. The actions involved the validity of policies on the buildings, which expired at noon on the day on which the fire occurred. The question was as to whether standard or sun time applies. This court holds standard time, and enforces the policies, which expired at the time of the fire.

The clause in the policies read: "Insured from first day of April 1901, at noon, to first day of April, 1902, at noon."

The fire originated in the factory building at 11:45 standard time, April 1, 1902. The alarm was turned on at 11:53 a. m., standard time, according to records of the department. The difference between central standard time based upon the mean time of the nineteenth meridian west of Greenwich, and mean solar time at Louisville is seventeen and one-half minutes, so that at 11:45 a. m., standard time, it would be recorded 12:02 1/2 sun time at Louisville. The court discusses exhaustively the questions and lays down the rule that standard time prevails.
